Ashland Drum Site - REMOVAL ACTION MEMO

The Nyanza Site is a privately owned active industrial complex comprising of approximately 35 acres. The buried drums, which are the subject of this action, were discovered in an area of the Site remote from previously known disposal areas. Several of the drums which are partially exposed bear markings which may identify additional potentially responsible parties. The OSC, with concurrence from Headquarters' staff, has concluded that the proposed action should be segregated from previous activities at the Nyanza Site.

During the excavation and sampling operations, attempts to identify potentially responsible parties will be made. Should these attempts result in the identification of additional responsible parties, arrangements for the assumption of the financial responsibility for past costs and future actions by those parties will be sought.
